SURVEILLANCE

Magnum Investigations is the only agency in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with a coveted Agency License, as opposed to a measly "Individual License," which solely Specializes in Surveillance regarding Cheating Investigations, Child Custody Investigations, and Alimony Investigations. Individual License holders put up a pretty website online portraying an image that they are much larger than they are. They are likely working out of their home and simply a 1-man operation. That is fine if they stayed within their lane and provided services such as witness interviews, serving subpoenas, background checks, etc. However, most 1-man operations will make the massive mistake of providing Surveillance services at your expense. No matter how good an investigator may be, common sense will tell you that if that one investigator were to attempt to follow your partner, it wouldn't be long before your partner notices the tail. In other words, your partner will eventually look in their side/rearview mirror and see the exact vehicle making every turn that they make and pulling up behind them at every red light. You can't follow someone with only one investigator because it's a recipe for disaster.
